

COPPER REGION. A correspondent of the Buffalo Express writing under the date of June 14th, from Ontonagon, Lake Superior, says:

Mr. Knapp, of the Yulea Mining Company, has lately made very singular discoveries here in working one of the veins, which he lately found. He worked into an old cave which had been excavated centuries ago. This led them to look for other works of the same sort, and they have found a number of sinks in the earth which they have traced a long distance. By digging into these sinks, they find them to have been made by the hand of man. It appears that the ancient miners went on a different principle from what they do at the present time. The greatest depth yet found in these holes is thirty feet. After getting down to a certain depth, they drifted along the vein nearly to a level by the accumulation of soil, and we find trees of the largest growth standing in this gutter; and also find that trees of a very large growth have grown up and died, and decayed many years since, in the same places there are now standing trees of over three hundred years' growth. Last week they dug down into a new place, and about twelve feet below the surface found a mass of copper that will weigh from eight to ten tons. This mass was buried in ashes. It appears they could not handle it, and had no means of cutting it, and probably built fire to melt or separate the rock from it, which might be done by heating, and then dashing on cold water. This piece of copper is as pure and clean as a new cent; the upper surface has been pounded clear and smooth. It appears that this mass of copper was taken from the bottom of a shaft, at the depth of about thirty feet. In sinking this shaft from where the mass now lies, they followed the course of the vein which pitches considerably; this enabled them to raise it as far as the hole came up with a slant. At the bottom of the shaft they found skids of black oak, from eight to twelve inches in diameter—these skids were charred through as if burnt. They found large wooden wedges in the same situation. In this shaft they found a miners' gad and a narrow chisel made of copper.

I do not know whether these copper tools are temper or not, but their make displayed good workmanship. They have taken out more than a ton of cobbles—stones, which had been used as mallets. These stones were nearly round, with a score out around the centre, and looked as if this score was cut for the purpose of putting a wither round for a handle. The Chippewa Indians all say that this work was never done by Indians. This discovery will lead to a new method of finding veins in this country, and may be of great benefit to some. I suppose they will keep finding new wonders for some time yet, as it is but a short time since they first found the old mine. There is copper here in abundance, and I think people will begin to dig it in a few years. Mr. Knapp has found considerable silver during the past winter.

THE COLEST INTEREST. We have heretofore, (remarks the Barre Gazette,) related several anecdotes of George White, who owed a wider notoriety as a thief than any other man, and who was an inmate of almost every jail in this Commonwealth. Another one has recently come to our ears, from the most authentic source, and deserves a record.

White was once arraigned for stealing before a Court over which Judge Sadgwick, (from whose lips the story comes) presided. James Sullivan, who was attorney General, argued the case for the government. In the course of his speech, one of the jury, leaning leaning forward, rested his elbow on his knee and covered his eyes with his hand. White rose up the bar, and addressing the speaker, said—

"You may as well stop, Mr. Sullivan, you have talked one of the jury to sleep."

Sullivan, who was quick and passionate, turned to the bar, exclaiming with much vehemence:

"You thief, your forehead bears the letter T, which stamps your character"—and proceeded to lecture him severely for his frequent arraignment, not forgetting to tell him of the nine indictments then pending against him at that Court. The whole audience was roused to the highest pitch of attention by this singular scene. White stood as unmoved as marble through the stinging reproach of the Attorney General, and, when it was finished, quietly remarked:

"You may proceed with your argument, Mr. Sullivan, you have waked him up."

The audience was convulsed with laughter. Judge S. remarked that he never in his life found it so difficult as then to maintain the dignity that belonged to his judicial station.

THE CHURCHILL BIBLE. A couple very well known in Paris are at present arranging terms of separation to avoid the scandal of a judicial divorce. A friend has been employed by the husband to negotiate the matter. The latest mission was in reference to a valuable ring, given to the husband by one of the Sovereigns of Europe, and which he wished to retain. For this he would make a much desired concession. The friend made the demand.

"What," said the indignant wife, "do you venture to charge yourself with such a mission to me? Could you believe that I could tear myself from a gift which alone recalls me to the days when my husband loved me? No! this ring is my souvenir of happiness departed."

"Is all—(and here she wept)—that I now possess of a once fond husband?"

The friend insisted—the lady supplicated—grew obstinate—grew desperate—threatened a public divorce as a lesser evil than parting with this cherished ring—and at last, exhausted, she had sold the ring six months before.

To gain extraneous sustenance—the poor opportunity, great or small, and improve it to the utmost.

LANDLORD AND THE DOG. We were travelling through Canada, says a contemporary, in the winter of 1839, and after a very long day's ride, stopped at the Lion Inn, and the contents of the stage, numbering about nine persons, soon gathered around the cheerful fire. Among the occupants of the room, we observed an ill-looking cur, who had shown his wit by taking up his quarters in so comfortable an apartment. After a few minutes, the landlord entered, and, observing the specimen of the canine species, remarked—

"Fine dog, that—is he yours, sir?" appealing to one of the passengers.

"No, sir."

"Beautiful dog—yours, sir?" addressing himself to a second.

"No," was the blunt reply.

"Come here, pup—perhaps he is yours, sir?"

"No," was the reply.

"Very sagacious animal—belongs to you, I suppose, sir?"

"No, he doesn't," was the answer.

"Then he is yours and you have a treasure," throwing the animal a cracker.

"Nothing of the kind."

"Oh, with a smile, he belongs to you as a matter of course?" addressing himself to the last passenger.

"Wouldn't have him as a gift."

"Then you infernal dirty, mean, contemptible whelp, get out!" and with that the lost gave the poor dog such a kick, as sent the animal yelping into the street, amid the roars of the company.

SETTING THE BILL. A gentleman from somewhere, (says the Maine Farmer,) not long since put up at one of our public houses. Un-doubtedly he was not familiar with all the ways and usages of the world. He had supper, lodgings, and breakfast. When dinner came, he seated himself at the table with numerous others. He thought the board was slightly furnished, but said nothing. Presently a waiter pushed him a "bill of fare." Struck all aback by this, as he thought, having his bill thrust in his face before a company of strangers, he gave the formidable document but a single glance, and deliberately folding it up putting it in his vest pocket, he very coolly said—

"All right—I will settle with you immediately after dinner."

A few waiters—just a few—were somewhat shattered, along the tables.

ABSENCE OF MIND. An exchange tells of a copper Down East, who, finding considerable difficulty in keeping one of the heads of a cask he was finishing, in its place, put his son inside to hold the head up. After completing the work, he went to his son, and, not finding him, he went to find his boy inside the cask, and without possibility of getting him out, except through the bung-hole.

BE CAREFUL HOW YOU CONDEMN. Judge not from appearances. Speak not against a man's character without a thorough investigation. An intimation that neighbor may have deceived you or has cheated another, may half ruin him. After you have graduated his character, and then ascertain your mistake, it is impossible to undo the injury produced. An ill report spreads like wild fire. Be exceedingly careful, then, how you condemn the case of another, without positive evidence of his knavery or dishonesty. Portland Impire.
